

participatory too. No, I will watch parts of football games but it's difficult for me to watch the totality of any game that lasts a long time because there are other things I have to do and I can't just sit there.

SENATOR MOORE: Do you understand that football is, tends to be a, have a moronic behavior to it; baseball is indeed a thinking man's game and still you prefer football over baseball.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Well the thing I've noticed is that a lot of people on the floor of the Legislature in whatever shape you find yourself in could play baseball, but not the same is true of football, and also, but not tennis, or swimming.

SENATOR MOORE: Senator Will, I share in your disappointment in your hatred for baseball. I assumed you to be a thinking man's sport and all those type of things.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: Let me modify that, I should not have used the term hate. I don't really hate baseball. To hate a thing it has to have enough substance to merit that strong a reaction so let me say that I'm not exactly indifferent to it. I have a little bit more negative attitude than mere indifference, but I don't really hate it.

SENATOR MOORE: You surely don't care for soccer either, do you?

SENATOR CHAMBERS: I watched part of the cup games on cable and it was interesting for a while but I couldn't watch a full game of that.

SENATOR MOORE: I see. A true baseball fan never really likes soccer, you understand that.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: But here's what I can tell you. I will make a wager with you, Senator Moore, right this minute, if you'll accept it now and we can do anything we want to on the floor, Senator Kristensen, that I can name more players on any team you want to select from the American League than you can right this minute.

SENATOR MOORE: I will not make any sort of bet with you, Senator Chambers.

SENATOR CHAMBERS: See, see.
